SPARC/World Bank Webcast
The World Bank was recently named a SPARC Innovator for its implementation of a new open access policy, which included the launch of the World Bank Open Knowledge Repository (OKR). The World Bank opened its data to the public in 2010.

Berkman Center Webcast:
“How to Make Your Research Open Access (Whether You're at Harvard or Not)”
How do you make your own work open access (OA)? The question comes up from researchers at schools with good OA policies (like Harvard and MIT) and at schools with no OA policies at all. We invite you to join Peter Suber and Stuart Shieber of the Harvard Open Access Project, the Berkman Center community, and Office for Scholarly Communication in an open forum on the Harvard OA policies, concrete steps for making your work OA, and questions on any aspect of OA, especially from the perspective of publishing researchers.

Learn about Open Access Journals with Publisher Representatives
Meet with representatives from several prominent Open Access publishers to hear how high-quality OA journals can expand access to information and extend the impact of your research.

Open Access Breakfast with David Weinberger
David Weinberger is an American technologist, professional speaker, commentator, and a senior researcher at Harvard University’s Berkman Center for the Internet and Society. At the Berkman Center, Weinberger writes about networking knowledge and the effect of technology on ideas, business and society.